The 17th Suspect James Patterson

A series of shootings exposes San Francisco to a methodical yet unpredictable killer. A tip from a confidential informant leads Sergeant Lindsay Boxer out of her jurisdiction and the hunt for the killer takes an unexpected and dangerous toll on her both mentally and physically. Still, with lives at stake, Lindsay can't help but follow the case into ever more terrifying terrain. A decorated officer, loving wife, devoted mother, and loyal friend, Lindsay's unwavering integrity has never failed her. But she finds herself up against a force that is determined to undermine it all.

The Cast Danielle Steel

Mother and successful writer Kait Whittier has built her magazine column into a respected read followed by fans across the country. She loves her work and has no plans for a career change, but after a chance meeting with Zack Winter, a television producer from Los Angeles, everything changes. Inspired by the true story of her own indomitable grandmother, Kait creates the storyline for a TV series. Zack is so impressed he decides to make Kait's story his next big budget project. Within weeks, Kait is plunged into a colorful world of actors and industry pros. The cast becomes a second family to Kait, as together they explore the strength exuded by the female spirit, and the courage required of all of us to persevere life's drama of heartbreak and joy.

The High Tide Club Mary Kay Andrews

Everyone in the south has heard about the eccentric millionaire mistress of Talisa, but when ninety-nine-year-old heiress Josephine Bettendorf Warrick summons attorney Brooke Trappnell to her pink, barrier-island mansion with a cryptic note, Brooke has no idea what to expect. Over the course of a few meetings, Josephine spins a tale of old friendships, dark secrets, and a long-unsolved murder. She wants to hire Brooke for two reasons: first, to protect her island from those who would despoil her land, and second, to help her make amends with the heirs of the women who were her closest friends, the girls of The High Tide Club.

The Trials of Apollo: The Burning Maze Rick Riordan

The formerly glorious god Apollo, cast down to earth in punishment by Zeus, is now an awkward mortal teenager named Lester Papadopoulos. To regain his place on Mount Olympus, Lester must restore five Oracles that have gone dark. But he must achieve this impossible task without any godly powers and while being duty-bound to a confounding young daughter of Demeter named Meg. Lester managed to survive his first two trials, but Meg's prophecy has revealed that an evil triumvirate of Roman emperors plans to attack Camp Jupiter.

The 49th Mystic Ted Dekker

Some say the great mystery of living in two worlds at once died many years ago. Others say that the gateway to a greater reality is only the stuff of dreams. In the small town of Eden, Utah, a blind girl named Rachelle Matthews is about to find out just how wrong they are. When a procedure meant to restore her sight goes awry, she begins to dream of another world so real that she wonders if the reality she knew on earth might be the dream she is having in her sleep. Rachelle soon discovers that there are powerful enemies out to destroy her in both worlds and that she must restore five ancient seals to bring peace to herself and both of her new realities. If she fails, both worlds will be forever locked in darkness.

The Crooked Staircase Dean Koontz

Jane Hawk knows she may be living on borrowed time. But as long as she's breathing, she'll never cease her one-woman war against the terrifying conspiracy that threatens millions. Battling the strange epidemic of murder-suicides that claimed Jane's husband, and is escalating across the country, has made the rogue FBI agent a wanted fugitive, relentlessly hunted not only by the government but by the secret cabal behind the plot. Deploying every resource their malign nexus of power and technology commands, Jane's enemies are determined to see her dead or make her wish she was.

Leah on the Offbeat Becky Albertalli

When it comes to drumming, Leah Burke is usually on beat—but real life isn't always so rhythmic. An anomaly in her friend group, she's the only child of a young, single mom, and her life is decidedly less privileged. She loves to draw but is too self-conscious to show it. And even though her mom knows she's bisexual, she hasn't mustered the courage to tell her friends. So, when her rock-solid friend group starts to fracture in unexpected ways, Leah struggles to find her tempo. With prom and college on the horizon, tensions are running high. It's hard for Leah to strike the right note while the people she might love one of them more than she ever intended.

Twisted Prey John Sandford

Federal Marshal Lucas Davenport has crossed paths with Taryn Grant before. A rich psychopath heavily involved in politics, Grant is certainly a force to be reckoned with. Not to mention Lucas is convinced she was responsible for three brutal murders he'd previously investigated, though he'd never been able to prove it. Once a killer has gotten that kind of rush they often need another fix, so Lucas assumed he would be seeing her again... and he was right. Lucas has recently heard rumors that Taryn has been making full use of her seat on the Senate intelligence committee. Pinning down and thwarting her plan is likely to be difficult and very dangerous, but Lucas has unfinished business that he intends to see through to the end.

The Best Cook in the World: Tales from My Momma's Table Rick Bragg

Margaret Bragg does not own a cookbook. She measures in "dabs", "smidgens", and "tads", she cannot be pinned down on how long to bake cornbread, and her notion of farm-to-table is a flatbed truck. But she can tell you the secrets to perfect corn pudding, redeye gravy, stewed cabbage, short ribs, biscuits, and butter rolls. Many of her recipes, recorded here for the first time, pre-date the Civil War, handed down skillet by skillet, from one generation of Braggs to the next. Rick Bragg finally preserves his heritage by telling the stories that framed his mother's cooking and education, from childhood into old age. Because good food always has a good story, and a recipe is a story like anything else.

The Girl Who Smiled Beads Clemantine Wamariya

Clemantine was six when her parents began to speak in whispers and she heard the loud, ugly sounds her brother said were thunder. In 1994, she and her older sister, Claire, fled the Rwandan massacre and spent the next six years migrating through seven African countries—perpetually hungry, imprisoned, abused, witnessing inhuman cruelty. When Clemantine was twelve, the sisters were granted refugee status in the United States. Clemantine was taken in by a family who raised her as their own. She seemed to live the American dream: attending private school, taking up cheerleading, graduating from Yale. Yet years of devastation could not be erased. Clemantine provokes readers to look beyond the label "victim" and recognize the power to transcend even the most profound injuries.

Warlight Michael Ondaatje

Fourteen-year-old Nathaniel and his sister, Rachel, live in London just after World War II. Their mother and father have suddenly moved to Singapore, leaving them in the care of a mysterious figure called The Moth. The children suspect their new caretaker might be a criminal. They grow both more convinced and less concerned as they come to know his eccentric crew of friends: an unlikely group of men and women joined by a history of unspecified service during the war, all of whom seem to be determined to protect and educate the siblings. After months of silence, their mother returns for her children... alone, without explanation. Years later, as an adult, Nathaniel begins to uncover all that he didn't know and understand as a child.
